Such information may include:

- matters of supposition;
- matters that are insufficiently definite to warrant being made known to the public; and
- matters relating to the intentions, or likely intentions, of a person.

It doesn't matter how or where the person obtains the information – it doesn't have to be obtained from The Lottery Corporation to constitute inside information.

Compliance with minimum shareholding policies

This policy is to be read together with the Non-Executive Director Shareholding Policy and Executive Shareholding Policy (Minimum Shareholding Policies). An application for approval to deal in The Lottery Corporation securities may be refused where the applicant is not, or as a result of the proposed dealing will not be, in compliance with the applicable Minimum Shareholding Policy.

Prohibition on short selling and short term dealing

Short selling occurs when a person sells financial products with a view to repurchasing them later at a lower price. Directors and Restricted Employees must not, and must ensure their associates do not, engage in short selling of The Lottery Corporation securities.

Trading in The Lottery Corporation securities for short term gains or speculating on market fluctuations may be perceived to be insider trading, does not promote investor and market confidence, and does not support The Lottery Corporation's long term objectives. Directors and Restricted Employees must not, and must ensure their associates do not, buy and sell The Lottery Corporation securities on a short term basis (that is, within a six month period of acquisition), except in exceptional circumstances and where prior written approval is sought and obtained in accordance with this policy.

Prohibition on hedging and derivatives

Hedging includes entering into transactions in financial products that operate to limit the economic risk associated with holding The Lottery Corporation securities.

A Director or Restricted Employee who is not in possession of inside information may be granted prior approval to sell or otherwise dispose of The Lottery Corporation securities during a Blackout Period or on a short term basis (that is, within six months of acquisition) in exceptional circumstances and where the dealing is the only reasonably course of action available. Exceptional circumstances include:

- severe financial hardship such as a pressing financial commitment that cannot be satisfied otherwise than by selling the relevant securities; or

A Director or Restricted Employee wishing to obtain approval to deal in The Lottery Corporation securities in exceptional circumstances must do so in accordance with the approval procedures set out in this policy.

Securities Trading Policy

Dealing excluded from this policy

The restrictions on dealing in securities under this policy do not apply to:

- an acquisition of securities pursuant to an offer made to all eligible holders of securities of the same class (for example, a bonus issue, rights issue or buy-back);
- an allocation of securities under a share purchase plan or dividend reinvestment plan provided the participant did not commence or amend their participation in the plan during a Blackout Period, noting this policy does not permit Directors or Restricted Employees from withdrawing from such plans during a Blackout Period other than in exceptional circumstances;
- acquisition of securities under a Director, executive or employee equity or incentive plan;
- a disposal of securities arising from the acceptance of a takeover offer, scheme of arrangement or equal access buy-back;
- dealings that result in no change in the underlying beneficial interest in the securities (for example, transfer from one personal shareholding to another personal shareholding); or
- investments by a fund or other scheme (such as an independent superannuation fund) where the investment decision is at the discretion of a third party.

A security dealing that falls within one of the above exemptions from the policy is still subject to insider trading laws and this policy may apply to any subsequent trading of those securities.

Trading in securities of other companies

In the course of performing your duties at The Lottery Corporation you may obtain inside information relating to another company (for example, a proposal to enter into a joint venture or material agreement).

Insider trading laws prohibit dealings not only in The Lottery Corporation securities but also those of other companies where you possess inside information in relation to that other company.

Team members must not deal in or arrange for another person to deal in, or pass on inside information to others who may deal in, securities of another company whilst in possession of inside information in respect of that company.

Know your responsibilities

It is your responsibility to understand and comply with the prohibition on insider trading and your obligations under this policy.

Directors and Restricted Employees must:

- take reasonable steps to ensure their associates are aware of and comply with the requirements of this policy; and
- seek approvals and make dealing notifications required under this policy on behalf of their associates.
